Distinguished Service Cross.

Surgeon Alexander Frederick Richmond Wollaston, M.B., M.A., R.N.—For conspicuous devotion to duty and for his unflinching care of the sick and wounded during military operations in East Africa. During the operations in the Rufigi River Delta he voluntarily attended to the casualties of the Rufigi River Transport Service in addition to those of his own unit.

Second Bar to Military Cross.

Temporary Captain George D'Rastrik Carr, M.C.—For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He reconnoitred a route for his bearers under heavy shelling. From 4 a.m. till late in the following evening he was continually under heavy fire between his collecting post and the regimental aid post. His constant knowledge of events in the first line enabled only the requisite number of bearers to be used in the more dangerous parts.

Bar to the Military Cross.

Captain Richard Thompson Caesar, M.C., R.A.M.C.—In evacuating the wounded under heavy and continuous fire he systematically searched the battlefield from shell hole to shell hole for wounded, until he could report that all casualties had been removed.

Military Cross.

Temporary Captain Henzell Howard Dummere.—For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He voluntarily left shelter and went across difficult ground under very heavy fire to help three seriously wounded men, afterwards conducting the stretcher-bearers to the aid post half a mile away.

Temporary Captain Leslie Haden Guest.—On the night of an attack he gallantly led his stretcher squads, under heavy shell fire, and collected wounded who were lying out on newly captured ground. By his courageous example and disregard of danger, he was the means of saving many wounded men.

Captain John Livingston Hamilton.—For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in command of a stretcher-bearer sub-division during a raid on the enemy's lines. During an intense bombardment, and when he himself was twice wounded, he continued to dress the wounded throughout the night, until they had all been evacuated. He set a magnificent example throughout the action.

Captain Harold Dunmore Lane.—For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During a daylight raid on the enemy's trenches he established his aid-post in the front-line trench, and worked there for many hours under heavy artillery fire. He attended to the seriously wounded cases in the open, and was instrumental in bringing in all the wounded from No Man's Land, and getting them successfully away.

Temporary Captain John Charsley Mackwood, R.A.M.C.—He attended to the wounded of 11 units in the open under heavy shell fire, working single-handed for several days. His self-sacrificing devotion to duty and his thoughtfulness and care of the wounded were beyond all praise.

Temporary Captain Douglas Charles Murray Page, R.A.M.C.—For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in going through a heavy barrage in search of two wounded officers, about five hundred yards across the open. He dressed their wounds in the open by the light of the gun flashes. Hearing that the M.O. of the relieving unit had been wounded, he obtained permission to remain with the incoming unit.

Temporary Captain Joseph Herbert Porter, M.B., R.A.M.C.—He was in charge of the divisional collecting post during an action, and by his example and thoroughness did much to encourage all ranks in the discharge of their duties. He went forward in charge of bearers, and by his untiring energy succeeded in getting his communications re-established in the face of great difficulties.
